

Student Handbook

Undergraduate Programmes

1. About This Handbook

This handbook sets out the expectations that apply to all undergraduate students. Where a course syllabus states a stricter requirement than this handbook, the syllabus takes precedence for that course. Questions should be directed to the registrar.

2. Attendance

Unexcused absences

Students are permitted a maximum of four unexcused absences per semester in any course meeting twice weekly. A fifth unexcused absence reduces the final course grade by one full letter, and a seventh results in administrative withdrawal from the course.

Excused absences

An absence is considered excused when it results from documented illness, a religious observance, a university-sanctioned activity, or a family emergency. Supporting documentation must be submitted to the registrar within ten days of the missed session.

3. Participation and Missed Work

The participation component of a course grade reflects both presence and contribution. Students who attend consistently but do not contribute to discussion should expect to receive roughly half of the available participation marks.

Work missed because of an excused absence may be completed within two weeks of the student's return. Make-up examinations are scheduled by the department rather than the instructor and may differ in format from the original assessment.

4. Late Submission of Coursework

Late coursework is penalised at a rate of ten percent of the total possible marks per day past the due date. After the fifth day, the submission will not be graded and the student receives no credit for that piece of work.

Extensions are granted only in advance and only by the registrar. An instructor cannot approve an extension after a deadline has passed.
